STUDENT DISABILITY SERVICES

The Office of Student Disability Services (SDS) works closely with regional campus representatives to provide accommodations for students with disabilities. Students who attend regional campuses must register with the SDS Office and provide current documentation (no more than three years old) of a disability.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Students from regional campuses are eligible to apply online for various scholarships, including a transfer scholarship as well as scholarships specifically offered to nontraditional students. There are two university scholarship application deadlines. Most scholarship applications are due January 15, but there are a few non-traditional scholarship applications that are due June 1.

STATE UNIVERSITY

STUDENT AFFAIRS SERVICES TO REGIONAL CAMPUSES

TAKE YOUR PLACE in THE MURRAY STATE TRADITION

COUNSELING SERVICES

Several computers in the Counseling Center on the Murray campus are set up with cameras and speakers allowing counselors to provide therapy via videoconference for students, faculty and staff on our regional campuses who do not wish (or not able) to come to the Murray campus to receive services. In Murray, the computers are located in the same secure rooms where face-to-face therapy services are provided, so privacy and confidentiality are ensured. The directors at each of the regional campuses have set up secure rooms with computers equipped with cameras and speakers, so the client will have a private location from which they can speak to a counselor. At the regional campuses, the way a client would start the process is to speak to the liaison at their campus, who would arrange for the use of a private room where paperwork could be completed so that they could be assigned to a counselor and begin receiving services.

FOR ONLINE STUDENTS

Our students are welcome to come to the Counseling Center on the Murray campus. However, if they are closer to one of the regional campuses, they are also eligible to use their secure rooms for online counseling if they would prefer to do that.

CAREER SERVICES

Career Services provides career development and job coaching services to all Murray State students and alumni. Services include career assessment, major/career exploration counseling and coaching, résumé and cover letter writing instruction, mock interviews, job search, network strategies and graduate school exploration resources. These services are available through the website, one-on-one appointments and workshops. Students seeking part-time, full-time and internship positions may interact with employers on campus through career events and on-campus interviews held each fall and spring as well as through Racer Tracks, Murray State's personalized job search database, or identify opportunities through GoingGlobal, a resource and database for both the domestic and international job search.

UNIVERSITY STORE

The University Store offers many choices to help in the selection of affordable textbooks and partners with the Center for Continuing Education to offer free shipping up to the week before classes start. Book buyback and textbook rental returns are made easy with onsite services. The book cost can be charged to the student's account.

RACERCARD

At regional campuses students are not required to have a RacerCard, and most likely won't need one on a day-to-day basis. You are, however, welcome to go to your nearest regional campus to get one. Many businesses do offer student discounts and there's no shame in Racer pride!
