Take the next step.
Wishing you had finished college? This is opportunity knocking, so take the next step. Murray State's Bachelor of Integrated Studies (BIS) degree is designed for adults with previous college credit and/or significant life experience. Adults find the Integrated Studies program appealing because of its flexible degree requirements and alternative methods of earning additional credits.

Tailor your education for your career.
A unique and attractive feature of the program allows students earning the BIS degree to create their own field of study emphasis. You choose your educational path according to your goals. And if you want to earn your graduate degree, careful planning and advising ensure that students with the BIS degree are fully qualified to enter graduate programs.

Turn life experience into college credit.
Experiential learning credit is also a valued component of the program. If you have participated in a variety of activities and have developed a multitude of skills, it may be possible to use this experience to transition back to school or advance your career.

Take courses near you.
Murray State University brings the Integrated Studies program beyond the main campus. We offer the program via online learning, as well as at our regional campuses located in Henderson, Hopkinsville, Madisonville and Paducah. We have advisers at our regional campuses who are ready to assist you in reaching your educational goals.
Learn from the best.
Students will take courses taught by Murray State’s top-notch faculty who are committed to their students. We prepare you to be successful and more competitive for employment. Murray State has been SACS accredited since 1928, and we have been consistent in our national rankings. Take your place at a university you can be confident in.

Limitless opportunities.
The realm of possibilities are limitless when you earn your BIS degree. Some of our recent graduates now hold positions such as:
